

Jackie Wright

Jackie Wright is a highly skilled and creative public relations, media relations, and communications expert with over twenty years of expertise. Having worked as “on-air” talent, public relations manager and studio camera operator, Wright’s experience as an award-winning broadcaster has laid the foundation for her work that includes local, national and international public relations projects.

From celebrity management to working with high profile political officials, Jackie’s attention to detail, strong work ethic, and quick resolutions to problems, are the attributes that help clients achieve their communications goals.

Having previously founded her own company in a highly competitive market, Jackie has succeeded in giving her clients the communication prowess needed to stand strong in their respective arenas. From strategically assisting Marin Clean Energy with its groundbreaking fight to defeat utility giant Pacific Gas & Electric as Marin County’s sole provider of energy to helping nonprofits expand their brand, Wright creates winning communications strategies.

As an Emmy Award-Winning Producer, Associated Press Award-Winning Reporter in Radio and Television, and now an Award-Winning Filmmaker, Jackie knows how to help individuals, nonprofits, businesses, and corporations tell their stories substantively to garner their market share.
